

Miss Lindsey

Lindsey Yensan began dancing at the age of 8 and immediately fell in love with it. Throughout her training, she studied ballet, pointe, jazz, lyrical, modern, and contemporary.

During her senior year of high school, Lindsey tore her ACL and had to take time away from dance. However, God had other plans and brought dance back into her life when she attended Eastern University. There, she became a member of the university's first-ever dance team and continued dancing through her senior year, where she discovered a love for hip hop and pom.

Lindsey faced another ACL tear during her senior year of college but fought hard to return to the dance floor by the end of basketball season. If you have Miss Lindsey as a teacher, you may notice her knee brace — or, as she likes to call it, her “robot leg”! Although her injury kept her from dancing with her team at regionals and nationals, she was incredibly proud to support them from the sidelines.

For the past three years, Lindsey has had the opportunity to teach through our homeschool program, and she is so excited to begin teaching additional afternoon and evening classes. She is passionate about helping her students grow not only as dancers, but also as confident, kind, and strong individuals. She can't wait to continue sharing her love of dance with her students and encourage them to never give up on something they love.
